

Retrieving Data Using a GET Action

Dan Wahlin

WAHLIN CONSULTING

@DanWahlin www.codewithdan.com

Module Overview

Injecting objects into a Controller

Creating GET actions using ASP.NET Core Web API

Making GET requests with an Angular service

Displaying customers in a grid

Displaying a customer in a form

Injecting Data Repository and Logging Functionality into a Controller

Creating a GET Action to Return Multiple Customers

Creating a GET Action to Return States

Creating a GET Action to Return a Single Customer

Making GET Requests with an Angular Service

Subscribing to an Observable in a Component

Displaying Customers in a Grid

Displaying a Customer in a Form

Converting to a "Reactive" Form

Summary

GET actions provide a way to return data to a variety of clients

Angular services provide reusable functionality

Angular supports different data binding and forms techniques

